DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

The drawings are objected to because the blank boxes in figures 1 – 4 should be labeled with descriptive text. Corrected drawing sheets in compliance with 37 CFR 1.121(d) are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. Any amended replacement drawing sheet should include all of the figures appearing on the immediate prior version of the sheet, even if only one figure is being amended. The figure or figure number of an amended drawing should not be labeled as "amended." If a drawing figure is to be canceled, the appropriate figure must be removed from the replacement sheet, and where necessary, the remaining figures must be renumbered and appropriate changes made to the brief description of the several views of the drawings for consistency. Additional replacement sheets may be necessary to show the renumbering of the remaining figures. Each drawing sheet submitted after the filing date of an application must be labeled in the top margin as either "Replacement Sheet" or "New Sheet" pursuant to 37 CFR 1.121(d). If the changes are not accepted by the examiner, the applicant will be notified and informed of any required corrective action in the next Office action. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Application/Control Number: 10/809,555 Page 3

Art Unit: 2862

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shimazawa et al. (6,294,911) in view of Xiao (6,657,431).

As to claims 1 and 8, Shimazawa et al. (hereinafter Shimazawa) discloses a method of measuring magnetization including a magnetic field generating (20, fig. 2) mechanism for generating a magnetic field in a target area (26) on the object; a contact having a conducting probe (27) the contact supported so that the probe can be brought into contact with the target area; a voltage source (33) for applying a voltage to the probe (27); and an electrical property measuring section (34) for measuring a current or an electrical resistance between the probe (27) and the object (26) in contact with each other. Shimazawa fails to show a magnetic sensor for measuring the magnetic field near the target area. Xiao discloses scanning magnetic microscope having a magnetic sensor (10, fig. 3) for measuring the magnetic field. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the device of Shimazawa with the teachings of Xiao such that providing a magnetic sensor near the target to accurately measure the magnetic field as the scan of the target area proceeds.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2 – 7 and 9 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: As to claims 2-7, the prior art fails to show an electrical property evaluation apparatus wherein the magnetic field generating mechanism includes a pair of magnetic field coils, each having a magnetic pole member and the magnetic sensor and the contact are located in a center location between the pair of magnetic pole members. These features taken together with the other limitations of the claim renders the claims allowable over prior art.

As to claim 9, an electrical property evaluation apparatus and he apparatus further comprises a bending measurement mechanism for measuring an amount of bending of the cantilever when the probe is brought into contact with the object to be measured; and a control section for controlling the moving mechanism so as to make the bending amount obtained in the bending measurement mechanism constant. These features taken together with the other limitations of the claim renders the claims allowable over prior art.
